Not surprised TB on the increase

I'M not surprised in the increase of TB in the borough (Tackling TB, GT March 26). Walking along the pavements, I've had to navigate between spit, it's not only a health hazard but disgusting. When I was a child there were "Spitting Prohibited" signs, I suggest that they should be brought back with the added words "can cause disease" this may make people think.

Joyce McIntyre, Abbey Wood
● DR Nike Arowobusoye, consultant in public health for Royal Greenwich replies:

"Although many people find spitting in public unpleasant, the likelihood of the spit on the pavements contributing to the spread of TB is extremely low. TB bacteria are rapidly killed by exposure to direct sunlight or ultraviolet light and, unlike the flu and measles, TB is difficult to catch. TB is spread in the air and a person would need to be in close and prolonged contact with someone who has TB infection in their lungs or throat to be at risk of getting infected. TB can affect any part of the body but pulmonary TB (affecting the lungs) is the only form that is infectious, and it is transmitted by airborne droplets when someone with active TB disease of the lungs or throat coughs, sneezes, speaks, or sings. In people who have been diagnosed and receiving treatment, their ability to infect other people becomes minimal after two weeks of treatment. The primary objective of the Royal Greenwich Public Health and Well-being team is to reduce person-to-person transmission through early detection and prompt treatment of cases of pulmonary TB. I hope this allays your concerns."

Woolwich Common footpath?

IS it possible for a public footpath to be put across Woolwich Common. I have lived here for 25 years and I work at Oxleas and cross the common in all weathers - even when the common is a mud bath I have to wade through the mud, minding I don't slip or fall. I really hoped that when the Olympics had finished a path may have remained for people to cross the common safely.

Jackie Acres, Woolwich Common
● THE Common is now the responsibility of the Ministry of Defence. Major Gerry Porter from the Royal Artillery Barracks replies: "The common has only recently been passed back to the MoD after the Olympics. There is still a huge amount of work to be done and the recent bad weather has resulted in delays to the start. The provision of proper footpaths is being discussed although no firm decision has yet been made."

Why allow restaurants in the first place?

THE council congratulates itself for getting garish advertising signs banned from the Byron burgers and Zizzi branches on the Greenwich riverfront (Greenwich Time, April 9). But why on earth were these restaurants allowed to be built in the first place as they block the view of the river? Ironically the design of the Old Royal Naval College was dictated by Queen Mary II's wish to preserve the Thames view. Sir Christopher Wren had to trim his plans accordingly. Today big business prevails over the need to preserve Greenwich's unique beauty.

Prof. Danny Nicol, Plumstead
...And on the same subject, David Walton from East Greenwich writes: YOU proudly published the news that two restaurants have been banned from putting 'over-the-top' signs up at the Maritime World Heritage site. Isn't the outrage of the council a little fake and isn't this 'noise' all a little late, because the council allowed those architecturally appalling restaurants (nothing wrong with the brands, I love Nandos) to be built in the first place and has already ruined the site?

● WHILE any development is always subjective, very few concerns were expressed about the design in the first place. On a historic note, when the Old Royal Naval College was being built, Queen Mary II asked for Wren's original plans to be amended to protect the views from the Queen's House to the river. This view is unaffected and remains protected in the council's development plans.

Thrill-seeking 90-year-old scales new heights

Anniversary memorial for Stephen

ROYAL borough leader Cllr Chris Roberts was due to be among the guests at a memorial service to remember the life of Stephen Lawrence yesterday.

The service at St Martin in the Field was organised by the charitable trust set up in his name to mark 20 years since his murder on April 22, 1993.

Stephen's mother Doreen Lawrence, her family and their friends came together to remember his life and the efforts to achieve justice over the past 20 years.

The Stephen Lawrence Charitable Trust is organising a series of events to celebrate and mark his life and legacy including the SL20 Live Concert, a legacy ball and criminal justice lecture.

The trust's aim is to transform the lives of young people and achieve real social change. Its three objectives are to:

- Support young people to transform their lives, overcoming disadvantage and discrimination and into ambitious careers as professionals.
 - Ensure businesses can benefit from, and are more inclusive because of diverse talent across management structures.
 - Continue to campaign for fairness and justice, ensuring the lessons from Stephen's murder are acted upon.
- Donations can be made online at www.justgiving.com/slct/Donate or by texting 70070 with SLCT 20 followed by the amount to be donated.

DAREDEVIL pensioner Frank Tavener marked his 90th birthday by becoming the oldest man to walk across the top of the O2 arena.

And that was just the start for the young-at-heart thrill-seeker, who followed his skywalking escapade by crossing the Thames 30 metres up on the cable car, before taking a high-speed boat ride and climbing to the top of the Shard.

Frank told GT: "I'll do anything and everything I'm able to do. If I'm still around when I'm 100 I'll do it all over again. If something's there, I've got to conquer it."

The week of daring antics was laid on by Frank's son Allan, who said: "I asked dad what he wanted for his birthday, and he said, 'Surprise me' - so I did!"

With a head for heights, life-long Arsenal fan Frank has also been up in the London Eye twice, and was given a tour of the Emirates stadium by his all-time favourite Gunner, Johnny Radford.

"We've been on the London Duck tours [amphibious bus-boats]," he added. "The last time I saw a DUKW was in 1945 as we were crossing the Rhine - with mortars coming down!"

The 90-year-old's no stranger to danger - he fought his way from Normandy into Nazi Germany in the Second World War, before he fell into enemy hands and was taken prisoner.

"It was the end of the war by then, so the Germans kept me in the guard room with them and were keen to show what good care they took of us - before they were captured," Frank said. "Before I went into the army

by Rod Kitson

I made the Spitfires and Wellington bombers." He did his service in the Royal Artillery, and after the heights of the cable car and O2 on Tuesday, there was just time for a whistle-stop tour of the Artillery's spiritual home at the Firepower museum on the Woolwich Arsenal.

Frank lived most of his life in Eltham, before retiring. He stayed with his son Allan, in East Greenwich for the week. "I'm here until Friday, then I'm going home for a rest!" he joked.

Allan, 56, said: "We spoke to the O2 staff, and they said the oldest person they've so far had was 87, so dad broke the record."

Frank said: "I was lucky when I was put in this world - I've got good health. I can still get around and my brain's still working. There's nothing I wouldn't do - I'll try anything."

"I've had a full life - if I die tomorrow I've had a bloody good life. I've enjoyed it, and I'll keep on enjoying it as long as I can."

Progress on new development for West Greenwich

HARD HAT AREA: council leader Chris Roberts with developers from Greenwich Enterprise Board, Cathedral and West Greenwich House

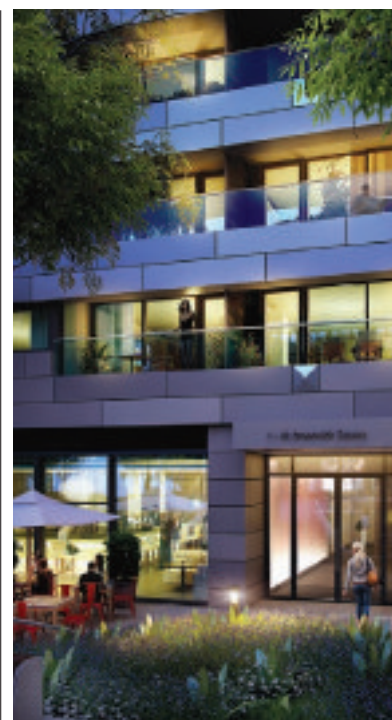

THINGS are moving on a former industrial site behind Greenwich DLR station where developers are set to deliver new homes and neighbourhood facilities.

Work is progressing on 2.2 acres of former industrial land which will be transformed bringing new life and new jobs to the area. The £110m development, known as The Movement, includes 181 high quality new homes (34 affordable), a health and fitness club, business hotel, and a 358-unit student village - all set along a pedestrian boulevard which has been named Lovibond Lane, after the local brewing company once based near the site. The scheme saw work start on the extension of the West Greenwich Community Centre with an extra 2000 sq ft of floor space which will increase the venue's capacity by 250 people. Eleven new business units are also being constructed in partnership with the Greenwich Enterprise Board and a bicycle café will offer coffee alongside over 400 bicycle storage spaces for DLR commuters. The project, designed in close consultation with the Royal Borough of Greenwich, is being funded by Cathedral Group and Development Securities PLC and project managed by Cathedral Group. It is estimated that it will generate £275 million for the local economy over the next 10 years.

Last Thursday developers invited royal borough leader Chris Roberts to see how the site was progressing since the start of works in June last year.

Richard Upton, chief executive of Cathedral Group, said: "The Movement is right next to the entrance to Greenwich DLR Station and forms a gateway to the town centre. It couldn't be more important. The vital community element of the site and the facilities will drive job growth while a thousand people will call this home once we complete the development. In the meantime 500 construction workers will work on site, contributing immediately to the local economy". Cllr Chris Roberts, leader of the Royal Borough of Greenwich, said: "This is a really exciting development which will provide new homes to help meet existing demand and also bring additional jobs and investment to the area. In addition residents will benefit from new community facilities including an extension to the West Greenwich Community Centre and a new nursery facility. We look forward to seeing the scheme built out."

Brian Bleas, director of the West Greenwich Community Centre said: "We look after 6000 people every month from the local community and these stunning new facilities will provide us with great new space, disabled access and an entrance onto a vibrant new street."

restaurants and a new Greenwich Centre where local people can access a range of royal borough services is set to open in March 2015.

The Greenwich Centre will be the third of its kind bringing royal borough services under one roof and follows similar centres in Eltham and Woolwich.

It will house a royal borough customer service centre, a new library and a leisure centre with two new swimming pools, a gym and two exercise/dance studios.

It's part of an ambitious investment programme to integrate and improve services for residents in East Greenwich.

The landmark regeneration scheme is being led by the Royal Borough of Greenwich in partnership with developers Hadley Mace - a joint venture between Hadley Property Group, and Mace, the company behind The Shard - the London and Quadrant housing association and NHS Greenwich with support from the London Mayor.

The layout of Greenwich Square has been designed to create a 'community hub' around a public square surrounded by cafés and restaurants and entry to the new Greenwich Centre.

Speaking at a press launch of the site the day before, Cllr Denise Hyland, the royal borough's cabinet member for regeneration, enterprise and skills, said: "This is definitely an excellent example of the local authority working in partnership with the public and private sectors. This part of Greenwich really has a unique character being just down the road from a World Heritage Site. This development will provide a new heart for the East Greenwich area and the new square will be an important hub for the community."

Peter Bennison, chief executive officer at Hadley Property Group said: "Greenwich Square will become a unique residential address offering a range of exceptionally designed housing options. In addition, the new public square together with cafés and restaurants will provide an important meeting place for residents and the broader community."

David Grover chief operating officer for Mace added: "This long-awaited investment into East Greenwich has finally been realised in a development that will demonstrate the benefits of public-private consortium and bring regeneration to the community."

Historic orchard reopened after years

YES WE CAN: Mayor and Mayoress water one of the 22 new fruit trees, and below, circular pond in centre of orchard

The apple

by Rod Kitson

WHEN its newly galvanised gate was unbolted last week, the Queen's Orchard became the first addition to Greenwich Park in more than 100 years.

Twelve years of painstaking work on the orchard – which had been an overgrown nature reserve for decades – was finally completed earlier this month.

At the official reopening on April 15, park manager Graham Dear said: "The park is 580 years old today, and this is the first opening of a new area of Greenwich Park since Ranger's Field was returned to the park in 1897."

The restoration of the area in the north-east corner of the park sees features of its regal past recreated, with an ancient ice well uncovered, raised vegetable beds built from railway sleepers, and two ponds dug.

New fruit trees have been planted, with archaic varieties of apple, pear and plum returning after being all but consigned to the history books.

The area was handed back to the Royal Parks by the council more than a decade ago, in which time the land has been gradually brought back to a former glory that the orchard's eponymous Queen Anne of Denmark would no doubt have approved.

Assistant park manager, Michael Loughnane said: "We cleared out a lot of brambles and sycamores which had been growing for a number of years. In the last three years the beds began to go in."

"We've tried to retain the historical aspect to it. We had an archaeologist in three years ago to establish where we were and what the history of the area was, and that's when we found the well. It's a lovely structure."

The perimeter wall was knocked through to reinstate a gate in its original place. The metal entrance was designed by local artist Heather Burrell and school children from John Roan secondary and Meridian primary – the park's two closest schools.

Ten-year-old Miriam Kenedy said: "It's quite exciting to see it finished. When I look at the design I feel really proud."

Vegetables are taking root, the fruits of which will be shared out among the volunteers who tend the orchard and helped clear and restore it.

Much of the work was done by Friends of Greenwich Park volunteers, who also raised some of the money for the project. Friends chair, Liz Coyle told GT: "It's a very special area of the park and it's been a long time coming. Hundreds of years ago it was an orchard, and I think it's now reasonably close to how it would originally have looked. It's very important to preserve the history of the park."

Park staff and contractors also helped on the site, clearing foliage, digging the ponds and building internal walls.

The fruit garden started life in the early part of the 1600s after construction on the Queen's House began.

Through the centuries, the eccentricities and egos of various royals all made their mark, before its high walls were built in Victorian times.

It's an area with hazards which need supervision, so at present it is only open to the public on Sundays, from 1pm to 3pm. It will also be used as an educational tool for local school children. Pond-dipping in the 12-foot-deep pool proved particularly popular with the younger kids.

Fifteen-year-old John Roan student Jamie Sinclair told GT: "It's important to preserve nature, and in these times it's good to grow your own stuff and be sustainable."

Making Winnie's wish come true

Appeal to send poorly youngster to Disneyland

by Rod Kitson

A TERMINALLY ill two-year-old whose favourite cartoon character is Minnie Mouse, could get the holiday of her dreams thanks to a caring family friend.

Little Winnie Martin was diagnosed with leukaemia last October, and also has Down's syndrome.

Now Claire Cole from Charlton is hoping to raise the £10,000 for a trip to Florida for the tot and her family.

Claire told GT: "When she was diagnosed they gave her a 10 per cent chance of survival. At the moment she's in remission, but she can't have antibiotics, so every day is a blessing.

"She had pneumonia, and then they discovered that she had leukaemia. The doctors have given her four lots of chemotherapy, but because it is so intense she would not survive if they gave her any more." The fundraiser has turned her home into the HQ of the operation, tirelessly phoning shops and businesses for donations to be auctioned off at a fun day in Eltham in June.

The 30-year-old is working all hours on the project, after she was diagnosed with epilepsy and unable to continue working as a tattooist. And her brother Dean is autistic, all of which contributed to her desire to help Winnie.

"Because of my background, I thought, I've got to do something," Claire said. "I got involved in February and I haven't stopped." So far the tally stands at £3,000, and Claire hopes the fun day at Eltham Turning Pages on June 15 will net a further £5k. "I've got the venue, a bouncy castle, mascots, two singers, a Michael Jackson impersonator, cheerleaders, DJs and all the food. If I'm not ringing up someone who said they'd donate, then I'm ringing up someone that will."

The day runs from 3pm to 8pm, and donations for the auction so far include a £200 mountain bike from Halfords, toiletries and designer handbags from Boots, as well as cuddly toys and gift packs that Claire has put together herself.

On May 11 her Charlton home is host to another fundraiser – a tattoo party.

"The tattooist I used to work for has agreed to give their time for free, and all the proceeds go to Winnie," said the former body artist, who's even had a picture of Winnie drawn permanently on her leg.

Wristbands are on sale – which have so far been publicly worn by Another Level pop star Dane Bowers, and Millwall's mascot at Wembley Stadium.

Winnie's mum, Nichola told GT: "What Claire's doing is amazing. She's been a real strength to me. Winnie would absolutely love a trip to Disneyland."

Stevie Wander

CYCLIST Steve Battley is preparing for 10 gruelling days and nights in the saddle when he rides more than 1,000 miles from Land's End to John O'Groats.

The Plumstead security supervisor sets off on May 1, and is riding for no less than TWELVE charities.

Steve told us: "There are so many great charities out there, that I thought it best to let people who donate choose where their money goes."

He's been training hard - last week it was a solo London to Brighton ride.

"I didn't go the normal route," he said – "I think I went up every hill in Sussex, it nearly killed me!"

But he won't be doing the ride on his own. "I'm going to be riding in a group of eight – at 48 years old, I'm going to be the old man of the bunch at the back!"

Steve's also looking for sponsorship from local businesses, and any cycling gear bike shops can donate.

FIRST IN THE COUNTRY: Cllr Chris Roberts officially launches the scheme last Monday

MORE people are due to be interviewed this week for new jobs under the royal borough's groundbreaking Greenwich Local Labour Programme (GLLP).

The £6million scheme is designed to provide an employment lifeline to jobless people who have been hardest hit by welfare reforms, which have left them with slashed benefits and worse off by hundreds of pounds a week.

Already 26 people – many of whom have not worked for years – have started jobs in street cleansing, waste collection and parks. And about a dozen more are due to be interviewed later this week for more newly-created jobs in parks and waste management. More residents affected by the welfare reforms will be invited for another recruitment drive in May for jobs in street cleansing.

// We have a proud and distinguished record in helping local people gain the skills necessary to secure work //

As the recruits are settling into their new jobs, a new wave of recruitment for more jobs is pencilled in for October. All the new jobs are due to last six months, giving people the experience of getting trained and into work – while being paid at the same time.

The recruits are being employed and supported by the Manpower jobs agency. The next stage is for them to move on to different jobs with other local employers.

Greenwich Local Labour and Business (GLLaB), the council-sponsored training and employment agency, is now approaching businesses in the area to encourage them to take on people who have been working in the GLLP scheme.

The royal borough is the first council in the country to launch a local employment scheme of this kind designed to support families back into work so that they can continue to live where they have long-established roots.

Speaking at the official launch of the Greenwich Local Labour Programme last week, royal borough leader Chris Roberts said: "I would like to congratulate and welcome the royal borough's new recruits. In Greenwich we have a proud and distinguished record in helping local people gain the skills necessary to secure work. In all we've helped over 12,000 residents back into the jobs market via our award winning local labour scheme GLLaB. Therefore it makes sense to do all we can to assist local families off benefit and into work here in London where long-term job prospects are better and standards of education are generally higher.

MAKING THE LEAP: waste services collector Eddie explains how he feels about his new job

"These new jobs will not only benefit the hundreds of families involved. All residents and visitors to our borough will notice a further improvement in how we keep our streets and communities safe and clean."

Among the new recruits to benefit was 41-year-old Melanie, a mum-of-three from Thamesmead.

She landed a gardening job at Well Hall Pleasaunce and told GT: "I've always been interested in gardening and always wanted to do this."

The mum to three boys had been doing voluntary work in a care home and was looking for a job with support from GLLaB. She said: "I want to get as much experience as I can and then go on to get a full time job. I want to give something back to the community where I live and I want my kids to look at me and have a work ethos rather than seeing mum on benefits."

"THE answer to poverty is work," Royal Greenwich leader Chris Roberts said when he launched the Greenwich Local Labour Programme at the Woolwich Community Centre on Monday, (April 15). "Even in the current climate, people are better in London and the South East and families are better off staying here. We don't want to see uprooted and their children pulled people to help themselves and turning lives around

from their schools and having their education disrupted." Cllr Roberts said 440 families would be worst affected by benefit changes. Fifty per cent would lose £50 a week and 25 per cent £100. Seventy-four per cent were lone parents and there were 1,788 children involved. "The choice for us was to do nothing and see what happened or to try to step in and help," said the leader. "We felt it was important to help those who wanted to help themselves." Cllr Roberts told a press conference that this used to be one of the "most bustling" places for employment in London. He outlined recent developments in transport and housing which are making the royal borough a more attractive place to live while the arrival of high street chains such as Tesco and TK Maxx were helping to create new jobs. The focus of the council's work over the last 15 years had been to regenerate and arrest areas of decline. Critical to that were new homes, new jobs and transport infrastructure. More than 16,000 jobs had been created by GLLaB, the Greenwich Local Labour and Business scheme, since 1998. "We have created this programme, the Greenwich Local Labour Programme, to bring people into temporary employment, initially for six months, and we will work with employers across the borough to try and ensure people will be in full-time work at the end of that six months," said Cllr Roberts. "This is a £6million project that will run over two years and we hope to assist a significant number of people and turn their lives around."

HOOPED SWEATER: circus performers are part of the Dances bill

Fest way to enjoy dance

THE next instalment of the Royal Greenwich Festivals is Greenwich Dances, which runs from May 17 to June 27.

The six-week celebration of movement and dance includes workshops, film screenings, music and circus performances.

Greenwich Dance celebrates turning 20 this year, and has a bigger-than-ever festival line-up with some of the UK's leading artists appearing in streets, parks, libraries and museums.

There's a free salsa workshop, a screening of Grease at a pop-up cinema, an experiment with dancers from Japan, a cabaret and a 100-hour dance marathon.

The organisation, based at the Borough Hall on Royal Hill, is collaborating with Greenwich Theatre for an afternoon of dance, music and circus theatre at the Greenwich World Cultural Festival in July – also part of the Royal Greenwich Festivals programme, which runs throughout 2013.

Versed prize in poetry comp

PASSIONATE poets from around the borough find out if they've won the Eltham in Verse competition, tonight (April 23).

There were more than 150 entries into the poetry contest which has been running since January and invited people of all ages and backgrounds, writes Grace Lipski.

It was organised by Eltham Town Centre Partnership, and budding wordsmiths were invited to workshops at venues in and around SE9 including St Mary's Centre, the Eltham Centre and McDonald's.

Visitors learned how to enhance their writing skills, meet other poets and were then encouraged to send in their own verses, all dedicated to the town of Eltham.

The winners' ceremony ties in with a other bookish events at the Eltham Centre on Archery Road, from 7pm onwards.

The entries are being judged by lecturers from the University of Greenwich, Professor Andrew Lambirth, Dr Gordon Ade-Ojo and Dr Amanda Henshall.

Three winners each will be selected from the children's category and the adults' category, with the verses going on public display at the Eltham Centre until the end of April.

The prizes were donated by local businesses and include book tokens, music shop vouchers, family tickets to Eltham Palace - donated by English Heritage - and poetry books.

SPIRITUALITY can be at odds with the pressures and stresses of the modern world, but that need not be the case, says the author of a new book.

Joy Davies' mission is to get people looking at nature in a different way, to help them relax and enjoy life more.

Her book's called Too Busy To Live Your Life?, and Scene popped to Greenwich Park to do what its strapline suggested – walk with Joy.

Joy told us: "The book is about learning to live in the moment, to connect with the world around us and be part of it. We're all so busy with our jobs and our lives that we don't actually take the time to stop and enjoy it."

The compact volume guides readers through 28 days of activities and processes designed to aid contentment.

"It's been a long time in the making," the author from Shooters Hill said. "When I was 30 I decided I wanted to know more about life – what it was all about. So I quit my job as cookery editor on Woman's Own, and went travelling for a year."

"I went to Asia, and because of my interest in food, I was studying what monks ate, to find out what made them so serene, but I soon realised it wasn't what they ate that made them harmonious – it was what they did and how they related to nature."

Joy became more interested in spiritualism and how it fitted into the West of the 21st century.

"The title, Too Busy To Live Your Life, is to remind you to stop running around like a headless chicken and take time out every day," she said – "to develop the habit of knowing what it feels like to be calm."

Shooters Hill author tells Scene about her new book on finding happiness in nature

FLOWER POWER:
Joy in the daffs at Greenwich Park

LEAF IT OUT: tree picture from inside the book pictures taken in Greenwich Park and on Blackheath.

There are verses and lines that Joy hopes will be helpful.

"The problem is we all live too much in our heads," she says, "we all think too much."

Joy self-published the book, a decision she came to while being treated for breast cancer for the second time, and now it's on the shelves in Waterstones in Greenwich.

"It's about seeing things through the eyes of a child. Because if you look at nature in more detail. And as we stop and look more closely we forget our selves - whether the bus is late, when our next meeting is - all the stuff that we can't change."

The author is launching the book with a 'Walk with Joy' session in the park on Saturday May 4.

It's a free event and she'll be guiding walkers round the park and showing them how to use the book.

HOLLY GHOSTS: the C4 soap star is on stage later this week

Tamaryn is ghost with the most

HOLLYOAKS actor Tamaryn Payne has left the suburbs of Chester for the boards of Greenwich Theatre, where she stars in Ghosts later this week.

The Henrik Ibsen play is on at the Crooms Hill venue from April 29 to May 5, and Tamaryn told Scene: "It's massively different from Hollyoaks - I'm working on stage, and not with a camera, the whole technique is different. But luckily I've trained in both, so it should be fine."

Ghosts is the Norwegian playwright's take on morality in the 19th century, set at the opening of a new orphanage, and deals with issues from euthanasia to loyalty and betrayal. The 24-year-old plays the part of bete noire, Regina.

"It's a very interesting play, because it questions her reasons for being there and what's going on in her head - her game-plan," she said. "She's the daughter of Engstrand, and has been working in [the main character] Mrs Alving's house for eight years."

The depth of Ibsen's characterisations, and the norms of 100 years past led to big challenges in playing the part.

The actor added: "There are so many layers in it, it's very Chekhov in terms of what isn't said and what's going on underneath all the etiquette and the 'yes sir, no sir' stuff. It's a great challenge - it's not as straightforward as my stories in Hollyoaks have been. Unpicking all the text has been so interesting."

Although she's best-known for her role as Annalise in the Channel 4 soap, Tamaryn has appeared on stage many times before.

"To be honest, I've got a lot more stage experience than TV, because I've been doing it for the last 18 months I felt I was out of my comfort zone, but actually before Hollyoaks I went to drama school and trained on stage for three years and when I graduated I did a couple of professional jobs."

And after the run at Greenwich Theatre, there's film work for Tamaryn.

"I've got two films coming up," she said. "One is a 'zom-com', a mickey-take of zombie films, and the other is Vendetta, a British gangster movie with Danny Dyer and a couple of people from Game of Thrones. Very different from Hollyoaks where I was playing a police woman who was very straight."

The actor splits her time between London and Liverpool, where she filmed the Channel 4 soap. "I've bought a flat there, but I go where ever the work is," she said.

Ghosts is on at Greenwich Theatre from April 29-May 5. Tickets £17.50/£15/£12.50.

STEPHEN LAWRENCE GALLERY,
UNIVERSITY OF GREENWICH
Masquerade: Be Another.
Until Fri May 10

PSYCHOLOGISTS have long theorised that metaphorically speaking, we all wear masks, and the concept of disguises and the human psyche is being explored at the Stephen Lawrence Gallery in the University of Greenwich until May.

The exhibition is curated by artists Eleonore Gros and Alicia Paz, and displays snapshots of people wearing masks in different contexts, questioning the role of covering the face and humans' divided sense of self and our desire to be something else.

Curator David Waterworth said: "It's great to be hosting this exhibition in which a number of exciting London-based and international artists and writers look at the role the idea of the mask has to play in human nature."

Masquerade: Be Another is on at the Stephen Lawrence Gallery at the University of Greenwich, Queen Anne Court until Friday May 10. 10am-5pm Mon-Fri. FREE. 020 8331 8260. slg@gre.ac.uk

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 336

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Royal Borough of Greenwich's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed. Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to: For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time. For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Important Notice

Changes to the rents and tenancies of some advertised housing association properties.

Affordable Housing

Currently the rent level for the properties you see advertised in Greenwich Homes is significantly lower than full market rents in private sector housing.

From now you will now be seeing some housing association properties advertised for higher rents, up to eighty percent of the market rent. These rents will also include the service charge that you will need to pay for the property. We will use the phrase Affordable Housing on the adverts to help you identify these properties.

Please note the Council will continue to advertise all the homes it owns at the standard rent level.

You can bid for properties advertised as Affordable Housing in exactly the same way as for other advertised properties. If you are successful the housing association may want to check you have enough income to pay the higher rent, whether you are working or on benefits. If you are currently a housing association tenant the rent you pay on your present home will not be affected by this change.

Fixed term tenancies

You will also notice that the tenancies for Affordable Housing and some other housing association properties may now be for a shorter period than the present lifetime tenancies offered by housing associations. The phrase Fixed term tenancy will be used in the adverts to identify these properties. The tenancy details will be explained to you if you are successful when you view the property.

Please think about these changes when bidding for an Affordable housing property and make sure you can afford the home that you choose.

This is what happened to the homes advertised in issue 333 we've got young mums who haven't done any previous training. What we're hoping to do is encourage some of the girls to become trainers.

"We're also hoping to get a few carded female boxers out of it. We're going through a great transition at the club and it's all very exciting. I must say I'm surprised and delighted by the numbers. It's really gone through the roof."

Leanne O'Connor, 28, who has a child of seven and five-month-old baby, goes to sessions twice a week from her home in Plumstead.

"I intended to go with friends but I was the only one who went," she said. "I'm so glad I go because the atmosphere is really good. There are all different ages and you really notice the fitness."

"You can feel uncomfortable in a gym but here everyone's different and it's much more welcoming. The trainer is really good and it's really nice."

Twenty-year-old Georgina is ready to get into the ring and compete. She told GT "It's been brilliant and I've met some really nice people. We've learned the basic moves and positions and I wouldn't mind giving it a go. I've got quite a hard punch, I think!"

Training at St Peter's has been free this month and will be just £2 per session from next month.

ATTACKING THE PAIN BARRIER: JJ Webb on the attack in the Under 17 sabre World Championships in Croatia where he finished 12th despite being injured

Gutsy JJ shows his class

JONATHAN "JJ" Webb fought through the pain of a crushed big toe to finish 12th out of 78 at the Under 17 sabre World Championships in Croatia.

The young fencing star from New Eltham, who hurt himself in a training accident, kept the injury a secret and was knocked out 15-13 in the last 16 by Konstantyn Voronov, who went on to become world champion. Despite the massive disadvantage, JJ won four of his five poule fights then beat Carlos Javier Olmedo, from Spain in the last 64. A close fight went to 14-all before the gutsy Starting Blocks star got the final hit.

A 15-11 win against British team-mate Rubin Amsalem set up the meeting with European champion Voronov.

JJ had a day's break before the contest but still had to compete with his foot strapped.

Twelfth place secured JJ's ranking as the GB No. 1 sabre cadet for the second year running, as well as climbing to five in Europe, winning bronze and silver medals at international events and gold at the UK school games.

"I was devastated when I injured my toe and thought it was all over," JJ told GT. "There were some tough decisions to be made by my coach, physio and myself.

"In my mind I was determined to go and give it my best shot but I knew the decision was not mine alone. Considering the circumstances I'm pleased with the result and even more with the way I performed against Voronov, who also made it to the European Under 20 final.

"I move into the Under 20 juniors next year and this will be a hard transition but I feel confident I can hold my own on the European circuit. My season is now finished and my priority is make sure my toe is fully mended."

Women pleased as punch at St Peter's

by Peter Cordwell

A NEW generation of boxers are pounding fresh life into a famous old borough club.

Twice a week – on Wednesdays and Fridays – it's women only at St Peter's ABC at St Thomas Church hall on Maryon Road, Charlton.

"The response has been fantastic," project leader Paul Martin told GT. "The women, many of them young mums, love the sessions for the health and fitness but also for making a bunch of great new friends."

"We've had great backing from a charity called Sported, who provided a mentor, James Dixon, who has done a great job for us. He showed us how to make a business plan and apply for funding, which has made a world of difference."

Paul used to box himself, for Lynn ABC in Southwark, but joined St Peter's at his local club to help as safety officer on the committee and do a little bit of coaching.

"Steve Higgins is head coach," said Paul, "and he has three qualified ABA coaches who take the women's sessions. We did have some girls before but they weren't confident of joining the mixed sessions. So we decided to put these sessions together and it's working brilliantly."

"We have between 18 and 25 coming to every session, which is amazing really. The ages tend to be from 15 to late twenties and
